

The Daily Courant.

Monday, January 30. 1716.

From the Amst. and Leid. Gazettes, dated Jan. 24.

From the Camp of the Saxons under the Command of Count Fleming near Zamosse, December 27.

THE Palatines of Podolia and Czernichow came Yesterday on the Part of the Confederates to the Quarters of Count Fleming, and desired a Conference next Day at 9 in the Morning: To which his Excellency not only agreed, but even offered to come to their Lodgings to hold it, which they declined. The Palatine of Culm who went to make a Visit to the principal Confederates, being returned, reported to Count Fleming that they demanded very haughtily that the Saxon Troops be sent out of the Kingdom. The Conference began at the appointed Hour this Morning. Count Fleming demanded that the Deputies of the Palatinates and of the Confederate Army should be admitted to it, but the Palatines of Podolia and Czernichow would not consent to it. They entered into a long Deraile of their Grievances, to which the Count answered, with more solid Reason than they expected, representing to them in most pathetic Terms the Injuries the Malecontents had done the King, and the false Reports that have been spread against his Majesty. The Palatines then demanded if his Excellency was provided with sufficient Full Powers from his Majesty. To which he replied by a Question to them, which was, Whether they were against the King or against his Army? and they having unanimously answered, that it was against the Army only that they fought, he proceeded, and told them that the Army, whereof he was Commander in Chief, was a Full Power and spoke of itself. In fine, the Palatines desired Peace, to which the Count answered, that he was not against it, and came thither to concert the best Means of bringing this about. The Palatines confessed that it was their Duty to give his Majesty Satisfaction for the Injuries offered by the Confederates, but they demanded at the same time an Assurance that the Saxon Troops should be sent home, and that a certain time be fixed upon for it. The Count answered, that the King would not be against that, but that the Inteline Troubles had hitherto hindered it, although his Majesty had given him a Commission to treat with some foreign Princes to take those Troops into their Service. The Palatines afterwards demanded of his Excellency that he would write down what Satisfaction it was that his Majesty would demand of them, after both Sides shall have agreed to cation their Armies. They demanded also a prolongation of the Suspension of Arms, which was granted, upon Condition that the King's Troops should be provided with all things necessary, which they also on their Part agreed to. But at the same time demanded that no Contributions should be longer levied, promising to give Bread and Forage to the Troops. When the Count accepted, he declared it would be a greater Charge to the Country than the Contributions which he should have demanded. Thus the Preliminaries are sufficiently settled, and as to be hoped, that a full Pacification will soon be made. There was a great Debate between Count Fleming and the Palatines upon the Subject of the King's Prerogative and the Liberties of the Nation, as also concerning the abode of the Saxon Troops in the Kingdom. But his Excellency gave them such Satisfaction therein that they seemed contented.

Dresden, Jan. 14. 'Tis said the King will take a Turn to this City to hold the General Diet of this Electorate which is to assemble the 2d of next Month. The Prisoners of War who fall to his Majesty's Alotment of those taken at Stralsund are suddenly expected here. 'Tis reported that the greatest part of the Officers will have their Quarters in the Castle and Suburbs of Leipfick. The Prince of Anhalt Dessau arrived there two Days ago, and Yesterday paid a Visit to the Prince of Furtemberg, Governor-General of this Electorate. We hear that the Royal and Electoral Prince is at present at Geneva, from whence he is to go to Venice as soon as the Passage of the Mountains is clear enough of Snow. They write from Berlin that the King of Prussia is raising three new Regiments.

Berlin, Jan. 14. General Count de Wackerbarth will depart in 15 Days to go to the Court of Vienna, to take care of the Interests of the King of Poland his Master. Major-General Meyer is arrived here in Quality of Envoy Extraordinary of Denmark. The Count de Virmont has not yet taken the Character of Envoy Extraordinary of the Emperor, but he is to do it very suddenly. Count Dhona has taken his Leave of the King who is at Potsdam, and is upon his departure for Prussia. The Prussian Troops that are before Wismar solicit very much to be relieved by reason of the severity of the Weather, but their desire is not complied with; however his Majesty has sent them a good Number of Coverings to protect them from the Cold. We hear from Dresden, that although the Solicitations made to the King of Poland to cause his Son the Electoral Prince to return to this Country have been hitherto ineffectual, they have nevertheless resolved to make new Instances more earnest than the Preceding, to induce his Majesty to grant their Request.

London, Jan. 23. A large Imperial Commissorial Decree concerning the Northern War is published here in Print.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Jan. 30.

Hamburg, Jan. 24. According to last Letters from Copenhagen, the Swedes were gone from Carlskroon, and have taken the Island Weem or Hoen in the Sound, with Intention to pass from thence to Seeland; but although the Danes are not without Apprehensions of the Consequence, it is nevertheless believed the Swedes will not be able to undertake it, since on the Danish Side there is a large Stream of flowing Water. A Report is spread this Evening, that a Party of them are come over to Amack and make great Ravage there, but this wants Confirmation. In the mean time the Danish Troops pursue with all Expedition their March to Denmark. The Belt is not quite frozen, there being an open Stream in the middle; but the Sound between Malmoe and Seeland is very solid, except near the Shore, so that some Swedish Defectors are come over from Schonon, and report that 10000 Swedes stand ready to pass over, and their Cavalry have Orders to keep their Horses Frost Shod.

From the Hague Courant, dated Jan. 30.

Amsterdam, Jan. 29. 'Tis written from Lubek the 23d Instant, that for some Days before it had thawed and rained very fast, so that it was hoped the Sound and the East Sea would soon be freed from Ice, and thereby the Swedish Expedition defeated.
